Reflection for All Saints Day (Tuesday 1st November)

On Tuesday, we celebrate All Saints Day. We include all those whom the Church has herself recognised as Saints from John the Baptist, through the Apostles and martyrs to a whole host whose names we know and whose feasts are marked by the Church, though not all are celebrated universally, and the very authenticity of some is doubtful.

This known catalogue forms a varied pattern of example in style of life, ways of prayer and particular charisms that each one has. Much richness and witness flows to us from studying their lives and spirituality. It is possible that each individual person may have one or more saints whose life, example or teaching seems particularly apt and appealing for him or her. We also, of course, are many of us named after a saint, which gives an immediate affinity. Indeed in many countries it is a person's 'Saints' Day' that is celebrated rather than a birthday.

The first reading of this feast is from the Apocalypse where John sees 'a huge number, impossible to count, of people from every nation, race, tribe and language'. This should underline for us that it is not only the well-known saints we are honouring, but also that vast crowd who have been converging on God's heavenly Kingdom ever since creation. Alleluia! Praise God and the Lord for them. And finally, we should not forget that the early writings refer to all those belonging to the Church as saints. You and I are included in that number as we strive to live by Christ's law and the Sacraments in his Church.

Notices for the newsletter need to be emailed/posted to the presbytery by 6pm on Thursdays.
